THE FENIANS -We published yesterday amber of extracts from various journals of England and Ireland descriptive of the movements and purposes of the Fenian Brotherhood now attracting so large a share of public at-tention in Europe and America. The ludications are that a well-organized rebellion against the authority of Great Britain is impending in Ireland—a rebellion prompted by the long-deferred hopes of Irish independence. We are clined, however, to regard much that has ately been said and written in regard to the Fenian Brotherhood as an exaggeration of the aims and magnitude of the organization. The eccounts given of it are doubtless over-stated; int it is nevertheless true that a movement is out to be made upon a considerable scale, aving ln view Ireland's independence of Eng-But, as our contemporary of the Cincinnati Times says in reference to this enbject, pire are taken into consideration, it might rdly be credited that such a design would be

"BROTHERS: The Commissioners have heard with interest the speeches of the several Chiefs. In order that you may more fully understand the wishes of the Government respecting the future condition and relations of the Indians, the Commissioners will to-morrow go into the subject at large. To the several important questions that may then be presented we will expect full and definite asswers from the tribes here represented, that the same may be noted upon by us and reported by us to the President. All the questions and speeches made this coerning requiring answers and explanations will then be answered in full.

In the organization of that great real Union party between ultra radicalism on the one hand and disunionists on the other, it is of the natmost importance that we approach all the real or vital issues presented with n fixed determination to do that which is right. When the Constitution was adopted our fathers not only tolerated slavery but went further, in the spirit of concession or compromise, and allowed a representation of this element of slavery in the Federai Congress and in the Electoral College. Now that slavery is soon to be wholly removed from the United States, by the amendment for that purpose of the Constitution, the question is presented as a litering political issue, what shall it increto the benefit of the former slaveholding States, counting the freedmen entire instead of three-fifths, or shall it be rejected entirely? By counling the freedmen entire, the former slaveholding States will not only secure the same representation which they had before it erebellion, but even a greater one.

Now we take it for granted that nezro suffrage will never become a power in our countered to the former and the proposed approach to a present of the proposed and the proposed a

Is this good policy for those who are looking to the establishment of our Government on principles of absolute justice, liberty, and equality? There is no party at the North which will advecate the continuance of the Inequality existing at the outbreak of the rebellion, much less laber for the increase of this inequality. It will become apparent very soon that two remedies will be proposed—one proposing to representation according to the voters in each State, be they white or black. This, it is believed, is the plan which will be advocated by Precident Johnson and by the members of the party which elected him, except the ultra-radical wing which will probably insist on negro suffrage as a pre-requesite to the resumption of full State, be were and functions.

This policy is already advocated by the Washington Chionicie, the Indianapolis Journal, and meny ether leading Union papers.

Chors AND LABOR. -The great question, or great question in Kentucky and the South, is the labor question. Every Southern paper we wise guidance of President Johnson. Referring n this connection to the organization of Odd Fellows, the Boston Post very justly says that the noble purposes for which this grand institu-tion was established appeal to the purest emo receive refers to, if it does not discuss it. The subject is important in a national point ions of the human heart; its members as of view, and is almost as necessary to the prosbrethren in the holicst sense of the word; their perity of the North as of the South. When mission is that of the Saviour of the world—to do good unto mankind. Under such influence ne war broke out, the South expected to see the North speedily collapse in consequence of men mingle with minds free from the selfisi the sudden withdrawal of cotton from its comness which produces war, contention, and nnrce. In the jargon of the times, cotton was king. It was supposed that Northern manufac-tures and Northern business couldn't exist withcharitableness, and consult and act to assuage misery, inculcate virtne, and to persuade es out it. The histus caused by the almost instanto love his neighbor as himself. In this spirit we find citizens lately in bitter enmity em ancous stoppage of the supply of cotton was bracing each other as dear friends, and refilled, however, in some respects and to a large loicing in a reconciliation which bluds there extent by the Government demand for articles together in ties of lasting, amity. No which the war itself created. Much of the special conditions were required to allow a capital and energy which had been employed in brother from the South to join a brother from the manufacture of the great staple was directed the North, but all were called and all were into this new and nnexpected channel which welcomed: the happy result'is harmony, love, the storm of war ing. That capital and that confidence; and the crowning beanty, to behold energy did not cease, but merely expended their power upon new objects. Instead of making the President of the nation received by fellowcitizens representing every section of the country, with the affection and respect due an imboats, sugar-kettles, cloths, and furniture for the partial Magistrate and a 'sympathetic Benefacthe South, Northern manufacturers went to tor. How grateful to every Christian aspira making soldiers' clothing, wagon, stretchers, tion is such a scene, and how illustrative of the tente, shoes, fire-arms, and the thou power of mutual kindness and elevated motive. one other articles which the exigencies of battle Here we see man raised above his groser no emporarily demanded. Business, therefore, to ture, and pressed forward by impulses which great extent went on. Everybody at the partake of those sublime attributes which shine North was busy. New York and Philadelphia Boston, Pittsburg, and Cincinnati prospered in with celestial light. Why may not the same spite of the war, much to the astonishment of spirit sway every bosom, renew sectional friendhe conspirators, who had reckoned upon the ships severed by years of enmity, and render ns omnipotence of cotton to earry them safely one people in heart and purpose, thus making ough the fiery tempest which they had our country a land of peace and plenty for our evoked. It was a great mystery to them for a selves and of hope and redemption to those wh long time how the North managed to get along without the product of Southern cotton fields seek its chores? Tais is what would give us 'security for the fulure," heal the wounds now as the basis of its commerce and manufactures rankling, and make the American people one But was cotton their basis? Undoubtedly. The in fact as well as theory. conspirators were not mistaken in regard to The Masons have proposed a similar nulon this fact. The great mistake they made in refonvocation, and au address to this end has erence to this part of secession philosophy was een issued by Charles G. Wintersmith, P. not perceiving that the latter basis could be M., and P. G. H. P., of Kentneky. We trust emporarily changed by the demands for differit will be readily and fully responded to and ent kinds of manufactures, not depending upon sanctioned by the whole fraternily; "that the cotton as their chief constituent element, which Christian Churches will follow the glorious exstruggle itself called into being, and ample of the Old Fellows and Masons, and the experience, capital, enterthus effect a nuion which mere partisans cannot prise, and number of the North enabled it to supply. They underrated the power which | South for the purpose of informing the Govern ment on the civil eltuation of affairs in the vari gent numbers, in domestic manufactures can one States. We learn from the Nashville Dis bring to the support of a government in the patch that Mr. Wattersop passed therem is that city reveral days ago on his way to visit the States south of Tennoseec. He is a man of inhour of trial. Such skill and experience constitute indeed no unimportant portions of the very teiligence, and, as we know, entertains con-servative views. He will represent to the anews of war," about which political economists and statesmen have so much to say. The thern States were mostly without them, and President the condition and disposition of this fact, even if their people had been united in the people as he may find them. He has already visited porsons of Virginia and North Carolina, and we fere gratified to hear him say favor of the attempted revolution, would have milita'ed strongly against their success. The war being over, the demand for war that, wherever h had been, he found the people anxious tor the restoration of civil authority, and that he fund none of that bad spirit which nufactures, so to speak, ceases necessarily with it. The men engaged in it in the North a certain clas of correspondents seem to take return to civil life. Many of them re-enter the work-shop and the manufactory. How are a delight a representing the people as manithese to be sustained? The Government wants ferting. no more ambulances or harnesses, litters or hos-Watteren will be productive of much good, cital stores, or camp furniture, or martial equifor he 'Ill truly represent the disposition of the pages of any sort. Bombs and iron-clads, tor- Sonthen people. Preident Johnson desires to know how fa loes and "swamp angels" may rest. Their mission, it is to be hoped, is for the preshe say trust the people. He desires, as soon as has assured it will be prudent to do so, to ask, is to be the basis of Northern trade, sthdraw the troops from the Southern States, factures, and commerce? The pressure and leave the civil anthorities to enforce law war being removed, can they regain and order. It only needs the information Mr natural and original bnoyancy and Watterson will be enabled to give him to satisfy thrist without their original supports, with him upon this point. The people of the South out the products of Southern fields, and esp | have manifested a remarkably quiet and yield can keep up some show of life, a feebleexistence, even if the plantations of the outh were struck out of being; but can they pasper, can the country and the people grow pulent without the great stimulator and foundtion of erce and manufacturing industy which the South for thirty years or more octore the supplied? The cotton crop o the South, had no war taken place, would by this time have amounted to six, or, perhas, seven million bales per annum. Ite cultistion has been d in foreign countries y the enormous ces which have obtained but there is no country in the world that can compete with | policy of President Johnson by the passage of the South in its produces if the requisite the following outspoken and manly resoluted labor can be had. The sea of the Valley of Resolved, That we recognize in the police the Nile, suitable for the growth of the plant, is comparatively smal while the obstacles to ultivation in Indi, both natural and artificial, are of a formulable character.

The present cro in the South will amount to little; but next war a great effort ought to be ade to raise a arge crop. Prices for a year or two to come at least, are likely to rule high. probabl not much less than forty cents. Now, four million bales could be raised during 1866 hwould amount at that price to the enormean of six hundred and forty million dollars, or about one-fourth of our entire national This simple statement is sufficient to shew of what importance a great crop of cotton next year will be both to the individual wealth of the country and to the Government in the payment of the national debt. Such a crop would send new life and activity; through every channel of business from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean. The revenues of the Government would be of course correspondingly increased and the burdens lifted from the shoulders of the people. Every manufacturing village in the extreme North is interested in the cotton crop of next year as well as every from in the Northwest.

But can such a crop be made? We believe it can. We believe that a wise spirit of harmony between the people of the different portions of the country, an enlightened policy on the parof the Southern people, and the vigorous and ral co-operation of the General Government can accomplish the object .

The negroes are in the country, and they can perform the necessary labor with benefit to AT and an WE FIND IT CONVENIENT TO INTABLISH AN other Jewish Congression, therefore, evera Jewish citizen met he Sunday, Sent o'clock P. M., as Goodmante, Hotel, and Mr. v. Shigar was chosen Chairmain. After calling the meeting to order, the following preamble and recalution were adocted: tire country. Shall they be made toldo this or become a burden upon the land, and dwindle ly in favor of making them work, to hold out voluntarily, but to 'make them work whether they will or not. The State and the General Governments should act in perfect unison in city another Hebrew congressation after the MINIAG ARBIA ANOTH: Intercion, but herefore, but herefore, the herefore mostly read pages and the herefore. securing this result. But white labor may be made available in swelling the next cotton crop, and, if our Southera planters would consult their own interests. we think they might obtain a great number of emigrants from the North and from Europe.

There are many men in the South who own large bodies of land, but nothing else, since the neroes are freed. Now, if the owners of such lantations would proclaim their readiness to make a free donation of a tenth or some other part of their lands, now almost worthless, to emigranta, upon the condition 'cofstheir culti-vating it, the effect would, no doubt, cause an immense rush of immigration, and give new strength and vitality The residue of the lands remaining would te worth much more than the whole now is, while no injury that we can see could result to the original owners. Portions of the lands of the uth now lying idle and barren would thus become populous, and the South would rapidly sperate, and soon become more prospero and powerful than ever.

we progress would probably be made un der the force of such a stimulus in one year than will otherwise be in five or perhaps ten. It would be a far-sighted and magnifica stroke of policy, which would make the solitary places of the South echo with the sounds of a ing and vigorous population.
